The name of the company brings to mind the noble origins of this designer's relatives on her mother's side and especially the historic residence in Cheshire called Lyme Park.

In 2009, Celia Weinstock, who has a degree in history from Oxford and who studied jewellery design at the GIA in New York, launched Lyme Fine Jewellery. This is her first exclusive collection of high-end jewels.

They are one-off pieces that evoke the aristocratic elegance of her family lineage and at the same time have a certain flair that brings to mind Asia and the Art Deco period.

A mix of elements that tap into Weinstock's creativity to take on natural themes told with a savoir-faire from times past when jewels were made a certain way. Celia Weinstock successfully carries out this desire to focus on naturalism and history and she does it with the highest level of craftsmanship.

There are the Peacock earrings in diamonds and tsavorites, the Butterfly bracelet in inlaid jadeite, the leaf earrings with rose-cut diamonds and Flower ring with petals in yellow diamonds. She celebrates the past with pieces like the Victorian-style choker in diamonds and tiny pearls, the bracelet with baby pearls and a pair of Indian-style cascading earrings with Akoya pearls and pink coral.
